Passion Career (n): when your interests, strengths and values align to a career you like—and dare I say, possibly even love.

We forget to prioritize, let alone identify what we’re passionate about. Let’s take the next 10 to 25 minutes to brainstorm with this worksheet. Keep in mind that passions can evolve over time and there’s no such thing as a passion too big or too small.

Step 1: Define Your Interests

What’s something you could do for hours on end? What makes you smile? What do you love to do? Write down 1 to 3 interests that make you light up when you talk about them.

- ___________________________
- ___________________________
- ___________________________

Step 2: Define Your Strengths

Investigate your strengths by recognizing where you shine. Do you shine creating projects with your hands, solving problems or planning events? Let’s not be shy here. This is your moment to brag. Write down 10 strengths.

- ________________________________
- ________________________________
- ________________________________
- ________________________________
- ________________________________
- ________________________________
- ________________________________
- ________________________________

Step 3: Define Your Values

What causes, movements, organizations etc., do you care about? Think: Equality, animal rights, the environment. What principles or standards do you live according to or prioritize in your life? Think: Honesty, integrity, commitment. What are your core values? Think: Family, education, life balance.

- ________________________________
- ________________________________

Step 4: Determine Your Vision

Now that you’ve identified your interests, strengths and values, consider what you would like to achieve in your career in the next 3-5 years. THINK BIG! The opportunities for you are endless.

- __________________________________________________________
- __________________________________________________________

Step 5: Declare Your Mission

What action(s) can you take TODAY and this month to get started toward your vision?

- __________________________________________________________
- __________________________________________________________

Ready to take your vision to reality? Join the Passion Career Workshop! Let’s work together on your career strategy and start your intentional career journey today.